A SPLENDID LEADER

The Marion County Fair was a very fine exhibit of the capacity of Florida soil and climate to produce at the hands of intelligence and industry larger returns than can be had anywhere else in the world. Incidentally the citrus fruit display showed that the orange belt of Florida is moving northward and regaining the ground it lost from the big freeze of 1905 and the panic that followed. And the corn, hay, vegetables and other staples proved that the farmer who wants to "live at home" can do it better in Florida than anywhere else. In fact, he can produce more and needs less—resulting in a bigger surplus, which he can turn into money. The live stock was of the kind which has won for Marion so many prizes in competition with every county in the state. With all this, Marion county is not superior in natural resources to a very large number of other counties. She has not only the characteristic Florida sand, but also the kind of sand that enables and inspires her citizens to get a move on them and keep it up. Most any south Florida county can make an equally attractive exhibit, but somehow they don't do it, and the result is that Marion has a reputation that draws people and capital, and will continue to do so until the last acre is occupied and reduced to cultivation.—Tampa Times.

Florida is 1700 miles nearer the eastern markets than is California, and its farmers and fruit growers raise crops all the year round. It has fast train service, by which its produce catches the first market and gets the best prices; it is a land where sunstrokes, blizzards and cyclones are unknown; has good schools and churches of every denomination are numerous located throughout the state. Come to Florida. Why wait?—Washington County Verdict.

FLORIDA FACTS

Florida's acreage is 37,931,520. Florida has an area of 59,268 square miles. Florida has 1,958,683 acres of land in cultivation. Florida's average death rate per thousand is only 10.89. Florida has a greater extent of sea-coast than any other state. Florida has forty-five railroads, including the branch and lumber lines. Florida is the only state in the Union producing sponge; harvest worth half a million dollars a year. Florida is less subject to extremes of temperature than any other state in the Union. Florida has a greater variety of trees than any other state in the Union. Florida abounds in immense deposits of phosphate rock, from which the markets of the world are being supplied. Florida produces cotton, corn, sugar cane, tobacco, rice, pineapples, oranges, grapefruit, guavas, peaches, plums, lemons, limes, pecans, figs, grapes, tomatoes—in fact, a varied assortment of crops and fruits, many of which cannot be successfully grown farther north, except in hot houses.—Picturesque Florida.

A GOOD PLACE TO LIVE

Good farming lands are cheaper in Florida than in any state in the Union, and the farmers of Florida are making more off an acre of Florida land than in any other part of the entire country. Farmers and fruit growers can work out of doors every day in the year. There are no long winters to rob their lands of productivity. The summers of Florida are more endurable than those of the middle west and far milder than the summers in the crowded cities of the north and east. Florida has quick transportation to the northern markets. This is one of the principal causes of Florida farmers realizing such large returns from their products. They get into the consuming markets far in advance of similar crops from any other locality. There are no heavy fuel bills to be met during the winter season in Florida. This is a big item to the people of the balance of this great country. Come to Florida and stop buying fuel. The amount saved each year in fuel will pay for a good sized Florida farm.—Washington Verdict.

FLORIDA IS THE BEST

A number of citizens this past summer visited other cities far and near, yet we have failed to find one who preferred to live elsewhere. Each one questioned said that while there were some things here not to their liking, there were more in other places visited. California is declared a strong rival to Florida, but several parties returning assert Florida by odds is the better state, especially as to climate conditions. The objectionable features in Florida are much less than were found in various states, and this is emphasized by none of our people remaining away or purchasing new homes. On the other hand, hundreds of people are coming to Florida from other states to permanently reside.—Jacksonville Metropolis.

THE MARION COUNTY FAIR

What An Outside Publication Says of Its Big Success

The Sun representative visited the Marion county fair at Ocala on Friday and can state that it was even a greater and better success than could have been anticipated at the beginning of the season. One very noticeable feature for the management was the absence of so many of the side show attractions that always congregate at such places for the purpose of graft, but it can be said that the dozen or more attractions that were on the grounds were far above the ordinary. It was the intention of the managers and promoters of the fair to make a showing of the products of the soil as well as the advancement in live stock, poultry and the like, and in this they were entirely successful, for no grander showing could have been made by a number of counties. Corn was king at the fair, and the many exhibits on display showed what a marked improvement had been made in this direction by the farming element. Potatoes, cane, hay, and in fact everything in the way of products of the farm, was there and in great quantities, while the individual booths of the live and progressive firms of Ocala were all neatly and tastefully arranged, and reflected great credit upon the exhibitors.

THE SOUTH COMING INTO HER OWN

One of the most attractive forms of advertising that has recently come under our notice is a series of post cards circulated by the Louisiana Woodrow Co. of New Orleans showing the wonderful results of reclamation of vital prairie lands in the vicinity of that city. The post cards give excellent illustrations of crops of corn, onions, cotton, cane, rice, cabbages, peppermint and other products luxuriantly grown on the reclaimed land of fat cattle of the same of water transportation by means of gasoline boats and barges, of the simple methods of drainage, and of the attractive homes which have arisen where a few months ago there was but a stretch of waste lands. A study of these post cards suggests the immense wealth that will annually come to Louisiana when all of its 7,000,000 acres of wet lands have been brought back to intensive cultivation. Holland will not compare with Louisiana then.—Baltimore Manufacturers Record.

Mr. Benjamin L. Freyermuth was in town Tuesday, and when accosted about not having an exhibit at the fair, he said that he was merely holding off to give the "other fellow" a chance, but that he is giving fair notice that he will be in evidence at the next county fair, and expects to capture the first prize.
